Advisor: The Basics

Your Academic Advisor

Your advisor is a valuable resource. Office hours are posted or available from department assistants. We encourage you to take advantage of the support offered. You will meet your Academic Advisor on the first day of classes at the Advisor Meet and Greet. You should plan to meet with your Advisor on a regular basis throughout the semester.

Your advisor is a knowledgeable resource person who is interested in helping to make your college experience enriching and in giving you support in the developmental process. Ideally, you should choose an advisor with whom you feel at ease to discuss important issues such as academic plans, career options and opportunities, choice of major, appropriate courses, policies and procedures.

During your time at Curry, you may ask a faculty member with whom you have developed a relationship to become your permanent advisor. You can make a change of advisor request on the Student Portal. Advisors are not mind readers. Be honest with your advisor about how you are doing and what you want.

Student Advising Responsibilities:

- Learn Curry College's policies, procedures, and requirements.
- Clarify personal values, interests and goals.
- Get to know your advisor and let your advisor know you.
- Accept ownership for your academic decisions. Academic Advisors will assist you by presenting options.
- Make an appointment with an advisor at least once a semester for scheduling classes or when in need of assistance.
- Prepare for advising sessions and bring appropriate resources or materials. For example, bring a list of questions or concerns, have a tentative schedule developed, and/or be prepared to discuss interests and goals with your advisor.
- Follow through with actions identified during advising sessions.

Student Advising Resources:

There are various materials and offices available as resources for the advising process. These include, but are not limited to the following:

- Your Academic Advisor
- The Academic Advising Office Hafer Academic Building, Room 203
- Curry College Catalog
- Academic Early Alert- Your professors or advisors will submit an alert if they have a concern about your academic performance.
- College/Majors and Central Liberal Arts Curriculum Sheets - available in Advising Office
- Student College transcripts - Registrar's Office
- Web Information System
- Mid-term Progress Report
- Curry College Student Handbook
- Final Grade Reports - Student Portal
- Campus Directory

Using Your Catalog

Your Curry College Catalog is your source of essential information about academic programs, policies and procedures, helpful resources, co-curricular activities, “who’s who” at the College and other facts you need to have at your fingertips. The following topics are especially important to understand as you begin classes. Please consult your catalog for more detailed information.

Course Selection

In mid-October and mid-April, students plan their schedule of courses for the following semester. The Course Selection Guide and other materials are available on the Curry website and in the Academic Advising Office and the Registrar’s Office. Registration is done on the web. Once you have reviewed these materials and created a course wish list, make an appointment to see your academic advisor for discussion, decisions, and to get your Registration PIN.

These can be hectic days for both students and faculty; make appointments early to avoid disappointment in meeting with your advisor.

CLAC I and CLAC II

Completion of the two-part Central Liberal Arts Curriculum (CLAC) is required for graduation. Record keeping forms are available in the Academic Advising office. You should have a copy of this form and keep track of your progress.

* The Central Liberal Arts Curriculum is modified for transfer students by the number and type of transfer credits awarded. Each transfer student’s liberal arts requirements are described on the transfer Category Sheet, sent at the time of acceptance.

Prerequisite

A course that must be taken in preparation for a more advanced course. The advanced course builds on the content of the prerequisite.

Course Syllabus

Instructors distribute syllabi on the first day of class. A syllabus usually contains an outline of the course; describes particular assignments; announces test and quiz dates; and details policies regarding attendance, participation, and grading. Read your syllabus, assess the work involved in each course (required reading, quizzes, tests, papers), and speak to the instructor about your concerns, questions, or for information on the instructor’s teaching style.

Incomplete Grade

See the catalog for important information about requesting an incomplete designation when unusual circumstances interfere with course completion.
Schedule Changes (Add/Drop)

1. During the add/drop period (first 14 calendar days after Registration), students may add or drop courses from their schedules without penalty or fee. The first week of this process is done on the Portal. During week two, students will need to obtain the signatures of the instructor and advisor to make changes. Add/drop forms are available in the Advising and Registrar's Offices; completed forms must be submitted to the Registrar's Office by September 13, 2011.

2. Withdrawing from a course: Students may ordinarily withdraw from courses up to the 10th week of classes. The following conditions pertain:
   a. The student must obtain the signature of the advisor and instructor.
   b. A course withdrawal fee of $10 will be assessed to the student’s account.
   c. A “W” will be recorded for each course dropped.
   d. Financial obligations (course tuition, lab fee, etc.) will not be waived for any course dropped after the first three weeks of a semester.
   e. Not attending a course does not constitute an official course withdrawal. Unauthorized withdrawal may result in a failing grade for the student.

The deadline to withdraw from a course is November 3, 2011.

Grade/ Pass/ Fail Option

Each semester a student may choose to take one course on a Grade/ Pass/ Fail option. Under this option, a student may specify a minimum course grade of “D–” or higher by contract with the course instructor.

   • If the final grade is at or above the contracted grade, the professor will report that grade and append a copy of the contract with the final grade report. The grade will be included in the overall grade point average.
   • If the final grade is a passing grade but is lower than the contracted minimum grade, the professor will award a “P” and append a copy of the contract with the final grade report. The “P” grade will not be included in the overall grade point average.
   • If a student fails to achieve course goals, the professor will assign an “F”.

The GPF is not an option in courses in the student’s major, except field experience courses that may be part of the major. The GPF is not an option in credit-bearing graduate courses.

Copies of the contract must be kept by both the student and the professor, and a third copy must be submitted to the Registrar’s Office; faculty will report a grade according to the terms of the contract.

GPF contract forms are available at administrative, departmental, and divisional offices. The Grade/ Pass/ Fail deadline is the same as the last date to withdraw from a class. Contracts must be completed, including the faculty signature, and a copy must be sent to the Registrar’s Office by the deadline.

The deadline to choose a Grade/ Pass/ Fail option is November 3, 2011.

Personal Departure Plan

For Residential Students
You should create a personal plan for leaving campus that can be quickly activated if:

- You develop symptoms of a serious communicable disease including an influenza-like illness, or other pandemic illness.
- The campus closes due to an outbreak of a communicable highly contagious disease or a natural disaster.

Means of Travel
You should identify family members and/or friends who are able and willing to pick you up on campus and transport you to your relocation site on short notice. This is an important consideration not only for first-year students and other upperclass students who do not have cars on campus, but for all students in the event that personal illness makes driving impossible or undesirable. You should communicate your means of travel plan with your family members and/or friends and have their agreement.

Two Relocation Sites
You should identify at least one alternate relocation site in addition to your permanent home residence. If your permanent home residence is out of state and/or beyond the New England region, you should identify at least one relocation site that is in the local area.

Effective Execution
You are responsible for the feasibility and execution of your personal departure plan. Because of the potential need for a quick response to an outbreak or disaster, you are the only person who can effectively plan for yourself. Curry College is not responsible for the feasibility or execution of any student’s individual plan.

Failure to Execute Plan
Should you develop symptoms of a communicable disease such as influenza like illness or other pandemic illness and are unable to execute your personal departure plan, you may be asked to self isolate in your room and may be subject to placement placed in temporary housing if deemed necessary by Curry College or by the local Board of Health.

Symptomatic students will remain isolated and will be prohibited from all other campus facilities pending successful implementation of their personal departure plan, or the end of the prescribed isolation period, whichever comes first.

Failure of a student to execute a personal departure plan will not entitle the student to receive shelter or services from the College in the event of a sustained campus closure. If a personal departure plan fails, the student is responsible for quickly developing an alternate plan. Students, not the College, are responsible for communicating with their families in the event of a campus closure and evacuation.

Assistance
The College can assist you in your planning efforts. If you have special needs, like a disability, or would like to discuss plan options, please contact the Office of Student Life in the Student Center.
