

PERSONAL DEPARTURE PLAN FOR RESIDENTIAL STUDENTS

All residential Curry College students are required to create a personal plan for leaving campus that can be quickly activated if:

- You test positive or are identified as a close contact and need to self-quarantine due to the Coronavirus (COVID -19) or other pandemic illness.
- The campus closes or modifies its residential housing status due to an outbreak of the Coronavirus (COVID -19), other communicable illness, or under state or federal guidance.

Quarantine/Isolation

If your permanent residence is within 200 driving miles from Curry College, you will be instructed to isolate/quarantine off-campus at your permanent residence. If your permanent residence is over 200 driving miles from Curry College, the College will identify a quarantine or isolation space within federal and state guidelines for your use during the quarantine/isolation period. Isolation may be required while waiting for test results or when a positive test result, regardless of symptoms, is returned. Students who are identified as a close contact to an individual who tested positive, will require testing and subject to a 14 day quarantine, regardless of their test results.

Means of Travel

You should identify family members and/or friends who are able and willing to pick you up on-campus and transport you to your relocation site on short notice. This is an important consideration not only for first-year students and other upper-class students who do not have cars on-campus, but for all students in the event that personal illness makes driving impossible or inadvisable. In accordance with public health guidelines, students who require isolation or quarantine are advised NOT to use public transportation as a means of travel. You should communicate your means of travel plan with your family members and/or friends and have their agreement.

One Relocation Site

If your permanent residence is over 200 driving miles from Curry College, you should identify at least one relocation site that is in the local area. Please note: local hotels and motels may also restrict your ability to reside there if you are experiencing symptoms of coronavirus (COVID-19) that necessitate you leaving campus.

Effective Execution

You are responsible for the feasibility and execution of your personal departure plan. Curry College is not responsible for the feasibility or execution of any student's individual plan.

Failure to Execute Plan

Should you test positive for the Coronavirus (COVID-19) or other communicable illness and fail to immediately execute your personal departure plan, you are subject to placement in temporary housing. Symptomatic students will remain in temporary housing and be prohibited from all other campus facilities pending successful implementation of their personal departure plan or the end of the quarantine or isolation period, whichever comes first.

Failure of a student to execute a personal departure plan will not entitle the student to receive shelter or services from the College in the event of a sustained campus closure. If a personal departure plan fails, the student is responsible for quickly developing an alternate plan. Students, not the College, are responsible for communicating with their families in the event of a campus closure and evacuation.
